Since you're reading this ad, odds are pretty good you're an Apple II user. Or, to use the latest in pop terminology, a "retrocomputing enthusiast."

And what's the point in being an enthusiast if you can't be enthusiastic once in a while? That's what KansasFest is all about. Apple II fans getting together for five days every summer to learn how to make their Apple II do the things that "just can't be done on an Apple II."

Five days of very late nights and oh-so-early mornings. Five days of fun and games, great stories, and meeting the superstars of the Apple II world.
