- Jay Edwards

A. Showing off the Tiger Learning Computer, the only Apple II authorized clone. It's rare and not in perfect working order, so it's more of a curiosity for those who have read about the TLC, but never seen one.

B. Presenting some HR and DHR art for TO.AfterWork's screen saver in classic AppleWorks. Themed screen captures and hand-drawn artwork in groups of twenty to liven up everyone's AppleWorks' screen.

C. Demonstrating Tutor-Tech hypermedia, including the stack I presented instead of using PowerPoint a couple of summers ago. It shamed PP users.

D. Demoing Roger Johnstone's (Invercargill, New Zealand) adapter card for Apple II Mice cards/ IIcs that allow the use of PS/2 and PS/2-USB hybrid mice and wireless mice on Apple II computers. Roger just licked the last bug and tells me that he should have one to me in plenty of time for KFest!
